

What is claimed is:

A method for making secured personal identity card and procedures for validation and obtaining secure personal, which comprises the steps of:

(a) collecting a set of personal information from a user into an identity file
5 wherein said identity file comprises at least a section;

(b) presetting a header “personal identification number” (“PIN”) for each of said sections for representing the header of each section;

(c) creating an encryption section for holding a set of encrypted data corresponding to a set of biometrics information used in an authorization process;

10 (d) presetting a master PIN for said identity file;

(e) receiving an inputting PIN wherein said inputting PIN is configured to correspond to one or more of said sections of said identify file;

(f) comparing said inputting PIN with said preset master PIN; and

15 (g) opening one of said sections of said identity file according to said inputting PIN.